

ROCKSTAR ABA

Community Access Partnership Pilot

Helping autistic individuals build confidence in real-world environments through guided community experiences.

A Pilot Proposal for Community Spaces — museums, cultural institutions, parks, libraries & beyond

Inclusion is not just access. It's confidence.

Avoidance

Many autistic individuals struggle to participate fully in public environments.

Hesitation

Families often skip museums, events, and venues out of fear of overstimulation or judgment.

Goodwill without a path

Public spaces want to be inclusive — but lack a structured pathway to make it real.

All public. All practical. All community-centered.

Rockstar ABA delivers guided community-based learning experiences — supported by licensed clinical oversight and led by trained behavior technicians. We meet learners wherever learning is possible: museums, parks, libraries, cafés, attractions, civic spaces — any real-world environment beyond the clinic or home.

- 1 Guided experiences in real public environments — not clinics.
- 2 BCBA-led programming designed around your venue's natural learning moments.
- 3 Trained RBT staff support clients quietly and respectfully on site.
- 4 Structured exposure builds confidence one visit at a time.

“We help autistic individuals confidently engage with the public world — and we help public spaces become more accessible, welcoming, and community-connected.”

A simple, low-friction pilot.

“The goal is not to disrupt your space, but to thoughtfully integrate into it.”

A SHARED VISION

The public world should belong to everyone.

Together, we can create spaces where autistic individuals and their families feel welcomed, prepared, and empowered to participate fully in community life.

Not separate spaces. Shared spaces.
